Being a U&Me Trained Leader and Manager

One of three pillars that generate results is the U&Me core distinction “mastering listening” (the others are “acting from a future fulfilled” and “living authentically and exercising integrity”).

Building on that foundation, U&Me defines exercising coaching and mentoring as:
“generating pristine, active listening, expressed in questions, which leads to unbridled actions and unprecedented results”.

A U&Me trained leader and manager, when providing coaching and mentoring, at any level, in any leadership position and in any managerial situation, is NOT a professional advisor, a business expert, or a personal trainer.

The U&Me trained leaders and managers, when leading and managing by coaching and mentoring ARE Deliverers of unbridled results.

They lead their teams and manage teamwork by being masters in listening, and by practising coaching and mentoring as leadership and management tools.

In other words,
 A U&Me trained business leader is “the lantern that illuminates the path the team is committed to walking”.

U&Me trained leaders and managers, when exercising leadership and providing management,

- do not say, tell or point to the “absolute truth”.
- do not manage, or lead, from what is “right” or “wrong”, what is “true” or “false”.

A U&Me trained leader and manager, when leading by coaching and managing by mentoring:

- listens to facts; to what is, the way it is; and to what it is not, the way it is not...
- listens for workability; to what works, when something is working, and to what does not work, when something is not working.

A U&Me trained leader and manager offers access to a different, maybe new, paradigm in listening - the kind of listening that opens up and gives way to the type of leadership, management, and teamwork that realises promises, fulfills dreams and even materializes miracle-like results; powerfully, effectively, with freedom and ease.

This program provides the participants with the knowledge, tools, and skills to identify the limitations that internal “but...” conversations impose on fulfilling dreams and materialise miracle-like results.

It develops the participants' skills and trains them in providing coaching effectively and powerfully, in delivering mentoring and being free and at ease to master exercising leadership and in managing teamwork to fulfil the team vision and the promised future results.

Based on the unique listening concept at the core of U&Me's methodology and technology, U&Me trained leaders and managers are great coaches and masters of creating pristine listening.

U&Me trained leaders and managers create the active listening that generates the You and Me multi-level partnerships:

- from them to others,
- from others to them, and
- from others to others in their space.
